Clarion Partners and Griffin Partners Acquire San Antonio Office Building in Joint Venture

NEW YORK, NY – Clarion Partners, a leading real estate investment manager, today announced the acquisition of Bank of America Plaza, a 533,465 square foot office building located in San Antonio, Texas. The firm acquired the property in a joint venture with Griffin Partners, a real estate developer, manager and leasing company that specializes in Texas and Arizona properties.

The 28-story property, which was originally developed in 1983, is 91% occupied by a diverse roster of tenants in the finance, legal and government sectors. Situated in downtown San Antonio, Bank of America Plaza's proximity to I-10, I-35 and I-37 allows easy access for the city's suburban population as well as its downtown residents.

Downtown San Antonio is currently experiencing an urban revitalization comprised of commercial renovation, new construction and beautification projects aimed at enhancing the live/work environment of the area.

"San Antonio offers a strong economy and employment growth has been higher than the national average," said Brian Watkins, a Managing Director at Clarion Partners. "We anticipate that the growth will accelerate and we're very happy to expand our portfolio in San Antonio with this property."

"This strategic investment reinforces our convictions about the staying power of Texas and more importantly San Antonio's long term growth outlook," said Andrew Montgomery, an Executive Vice President at Griffin Partners. "Partnering with Clarion, a seasoned high-quality institutional investor is an important milestone for our firm's continued growth."
